The Committee will follow Vermont's Open Meeting Laws. There is a small appropriation for the Committee and some of the funds will be used for meeting facilitation purposes and other work deemed necessary.

Deputy Commissioner McLaughlin introduced Georgene Weisenfeld from the National Institute for Early Education Research (NIEER) from Rutgers University. They are the national experts on prekindergarten. Weisenfeld shared a presentation that highlighted the benefits of high-quality prekindergarten education, NIEER's preschool benchmarks, prekindergarten factors that support learning and development and the state of prekindergarten in Vermont and United States.

Interim Secretary Bouchey said that based on the recommendations required by the committee, it may be necessary to have subcommittees to work more intentionally on specific groupings to address the considerations. Both Interim Secretary Bouchey and Deputy Commissioner McLaughlin wish to be involved in the content of the meetings and hope to use some of the funds allocated to the committee for an outside facilitator. Deputy Commissioner McLaughlin to forward a committee member survey to acquire areas of expertise and interest on specific deliverables. Deadline for completion is July 31, 2023.

Interim Secretary Bouchey highlighted that the committee is awaiting four appointments. The cadence of meeting to be decided soon. Crossman to supply links to different compiled data resources and webinars that have been held over the last decade on Universal Prekindergarten in the state.
