Subject: Re: Licensing

"Debi,

Thank you for spending time with the driver educators and explaining licensing. I do recall you mentioning the VSBPE is going to review driver education licensing at its November meeting. I've had to move on to other things since the conference. I've just now looked at the Agenda for the meeting and seen that a vote is going to take place on bachelor degree requirements for driver and traffic safety.

Dropping bachelor's degree requirements and related educational coursework for driver education teachers in our high schools would be a huge mistake. Among other things, high school driver education teachers face all the challenges of other teachers in our high schools regarding mixed populations of students ranging from the high achievers to students with special needs.

And, driver educators need the educational background that comes with a bachelor's degree to work effectively with other educators and administrators in a school system. Integration of coursework and educational procedures is a critical part of what today's driver educators are and need to do. A teacher's subject matter should not affect the basic core requirements for licensing.

I could go on with this, but with the meeting tomorrow I'll stop here. I cannot attend the public comment time tomorrow. If the vote is to eliminate the bachelor's degree requirement I hope it can be tabled until this can be more fully explored. I don't believe it has had much exposure.

Lindsay Townsend,
Retired Vermont Driver Education Administrator"

Bachelor's Degree Requirements:

Driver and Traffic Safety Education:

Vermont has identified a shortage of Driver and Traffic Safety Education teachers. AOE staff with responsibility around Drivers Education programs have noticed a trend in an increase of private driving companies providing services which has resulted in annual increase in costs for schools and families.

The Board has asked Agency staff to provide some licensing options for consideration at their next meeting. One option the board would like to consider is the impact if Career Technical Educator licensure requirements were applied.

Online Teaching Specialist

An initial conversation was had regarding the intent of this add on endorsement. The Board reviewed the suggested rule change language presented by J. Renard from the River Valley Tech Center at the September VSBPE meeting.

“Add: 5231.8 Add-On endorsements take on the degree requirements of the existing endorsement. An add-on to a CTE endorsement would be considered a CTE endorsement.”

Vermont Licensure Portfolio

An educator preparation program expressed concerns of not having the funds to calibrate their portfolios and requested confirmation of the calibration requirement and associated costs.

Agency Staff Attorney Emily Simmons reviewed prior discussions by then General Council, Molly Bachman with the Board regarding the inability to have memorandums of understanding with entities that are not state agencies. A no-cost contract was investigated with EPIC. Currently, there is no contract in place and to resolve the ambiguity, recommendations for changes to the ROPA handbook were made.

D. McGough stated that EPIC services are free. There is a voluntary membership subscription fee per institution of $100 annually, which covers calibration sessions. Membership benefits include a voting voice on the board and a position on the executive board, but is not required in order to attend their professional learning opportunities, conferences or calibration sessions.

E. Simmons recommended the Board request a letter from EPIC to memorialize the conversation.

The VLP is getting buzz around the country as a unique partnership between regulated agencies and Educator Preparation Programs. VLP will be presenting in Canada in the Spring.

D. McGough will ask the executive committee to revisit the car insurance requirement for a contract with the Agency of Education. A meeting between Debi Price, David McGough and Emily Simmons will be scheduled in the future regarding contract requirements.
