

Child Find Information

Districts are required to complete the initial evaluation of children referred within 60 days of receiving parental consent for the evaluation. The calculation is done by dividing the count of evaluations completed on time by the total number of children for whom parental consent to evaluate was received. Allowance is made for evaluations which were delayed due to "family oriented" reason, such as family illness or vacation making the child unavailable for testing. Allowance is not made for issues within the District, such as staff availability.
